There was a good episode of The Long View on Radio 4 last week, looking at a terrible fire in Glasgow in 1905 as a ghastly parallel of the Grenfell Tower. But I couldn't help thinking also of a much more distant fire, and the blame game around it that has lasted for centuries: the great fire of Rome in 64 CE.

The great lie is, of course, that the 1946 Frank Capra film It's a Wonderful Life is an uplifting tale of kindness rewarded by kindness, and that true riches come from friendship with a bunch of fucking morons who don't know how banks work. For some asinine reason we've agreed to let this movie into our homes every holiday to lie to us and make us feel good that we're trapped in the unending cycle of alienation, remorse, and eventual death that is this thing we call we □life.□
